A Lucky Big Winning.
"In the old days," said a Colorado-man, "Senator Tom Bowen came to man, "Senator Tom Bowen came to Denver from Arkansas down on his luck. Steve Dorsey had just defeated him for the United States senate.

"Tom didn't seem to catch on in Denver, though he was a good lawyer. He was run down at the heel, and he took to pin pool to kill time. The stakes were usually a round of drinks and a bunch of mining stocks, the par value of the stocks represented being entirely consistent with the cost of paper and the price of printing. It was always a real hardship on Tom when he lost. The drinks had to be paid for in cash, you know. But he seldom lost, and, do you know, the little woman at home used to go through his pockets home used to go through his pockets every night for mining stocks.

"Well, one day there was a high strike in a prospect not so very far from Denver, and in telling his wife from Denver, and in telling his wife about it the future senator sighed that he wished he owned a few shares. 'I think you do, dear,' answered the little woman, and then to make sure she went and looked over her possessions. To make a long story short, Tom Bow-en went downtown that afternoon with securities worth half a million in his pocket, and he remembered that he had won them all in a single half day not long before."—New York Telegram.

Oblected to Prec Puffs.

John Knapp of the St. Louis Repub-Bean had little use for press agents, and it took a mighty shrewd man to get a free puff from him. He never would publish a lawyer's or a doctor's name if he could avoid it, for fear they might derive some benefit from the free advertisement. It is said that one morning mention was made in the Re-publican—they call it the Republic now—of a man having died of Bright's disease. Old man Knapp hunted up disease. Old man Knapp hunted up the proofreader and called him into the private office.

"Why did you let that get into the paper?" asked the old man, indicating with his forefinger the objectionable paragraph.

"I don't see but that's all right," said the reader.

"You don't, eh?" snapped old man Knapp. "You don't, ch? Do you think we want to advertise that man Bright for nothing? He never had an ad. in this paper in his life."

Manx Cats.

The peculiar breed of cats found in The peculiar breed of cats found in the Isle of Man differs from others only in that they have no tails, and the lack thereof is the insoluble puzzle to naturalists. Since it has become the fashion to explain everything by the principles of evolution, two theories have been offered—one that, owing to the limited range and lack of dense forests, the original cats had no use for tails, and consequently they (the tails, not the cats) gradually atrophied for lack of use and became rudimentary; another that the primitive Manx cut off all their cats' tails and in the course of their cats' talls and in the course of time developed a tailless breed. One thing is certain—the cats are there, and Dressing It Up.

A Jasper county farmer paid a high tribute to the literary talents of a Carthage real estate agent the other day. He decided to sell his place and got a real estate agent to write a notice. When the agent read the notice to him, he said, "Read that again." After the second reading he said: "I believe I'll not sell. I've been looking for a place of that kind all my life and didn't know I had it until you described it to me."-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Amateur Might Do as Well,

"Tell the truth, now. You are a pro-fessional beggar, are you not?" said the keen faced individual who had been approached.

"I used to think I was," replied the weary wayfarer, 'but since 18 cents is all I have to show for a day's work I I am forced to the conclusion that I am merely an amateur."—Stray Stories.

When Albert Smith grew tired of being the butt of Douglas Jerrold's wit, he one day plaintively remarked, "Aft-er all, Jerrold, we row in the same

"Yes," answered the clever playwright, like a flash of lightning, "but not with the same skulls."

Confederate Bazaar at Richmond

All over the South we have placed monu-ments to our private soldiers and sailors and their great commanders.

It now remains for the Capital of the Con-federacy to crown the whole by raising one to our first, our last, our only President, the head of an airly government—a government our first, our last, our only President, the head of our civil government—a government as wonderful as it was brief.

We owe this duty to ourselves and to our children, that they may realize what a sub-lime record was made for them in history.

The whole South unites in this loving tribute to the men who died to uphold that government, and to those who, with no less devotion, steered the ship of State. What have you done to help us? What will you do to complete the work? We ask both your influence and your sympathy, that we may build a monument worthy of our people and their deathless past.

This movement is endorsed by the United Confederate Veterans and the Daughters of the Confederacy.

flow in a healthy and natnow in a healthy and nat-ural manner. Menstruation started right is very easy to keep regular through the years of mature womanhood. Then the "change of life" need not be feared. Thus Wine of Cardui is woman's suffering is and Wine of Cardui has brought her back to health. She is one of the social favorites of her home and her recovery to health has permitted her to enjoy the company of her many friends instead of lying on a bed of sickness and suffering. For the health she now enjoys she gives credit to Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"I have found Wine of Cardui an excellent remedy for female trouble, I suffered for three years with terrible bearing-down pains at the menstrual period. I could hardly stand on my feet and was never real well. Wine of Cardui was the only medicine that I could depend on to do me any good, as I tried several with no success. Wine of Cardui cured me and I have now enjoyed perfect health for two years, and give you all the credit for I know you deserve it."

For a young girl Wine of Cardui is the best remedy to guide her through womanhood by starting the menstrual of the privacy of your home and secure just as much benefit as if a doctor had prescribed it for you. Thousands of women are feeling the vigor of returning health by taking Wine of Cardui.

WINE of CARDVI A million suffering wom have found relief in Wine of Cardui.
